

Backwards Planning – Understanding by Design Planning Template

Stage 1—Desired Results
Established Goal(s) Students will create a short ‘Book Tok’ (short, tiktok style video) at the end of the unit arguing which character drove the plot more. W.8.1 Write arguments to support claims with clear reasons and relevant evidence. RL.8.3 Analyze how particular lines of dialogue or incidents in a story or drama propel the action, reveal aspects of a character, or provoke a decision.
Understanding(s): Students will understand that... - Students will understand key components to plot - How characterization affects the outcome of the plot - How a character’s choices reveal deeper meanings about their personality and the plot	Essential Question(s): - How do characters' motivations and relationships (dynamics) drive the narrative? - How does a character’s actions make them the protagonist?
Students will know... (SKILLS) - How to identify the plot of a text. - How to identify instances of characterization in a text. - How to cite evidence to support an argument. - How to compare and contrast characters in a text. - How a character impacts the plot. - How to use strategies to write for their chosen audience	Students will be able to... (Strategies) - Use “somebody wanted, but so” charts to understand how characters impact the plot. - Use and fill a plot organizer. - Cite and organize evidence - Verbally explain their arguments using in text evidence
Stage 2—Assessment Evidence
Performance Task(s): - Students will create a short ‘Book Tok’ project at the end of the unit, which will show: - Understanding of how a character interacts with the plot. - Ability to make a claim from the text. - Ability to cite relevant evidence that backs this claim up.	Other Evidence: - Students will have a completed plot organizer - Students will have a completed characterization sheet - Students will have a completed SWBS sheet - Students will have a completed evidence/claim/reason organizer using in text evidence

Stage 3—Learning Plan

Learning Activities: (Above & Beyond... list lessons in the form of objectives)

- Day 1: As a class we will identify the plot of “Thank You, Ma’am” by reading it and filling out the plot organizer.
- Day 2: Students will characterize 2 people in their life, then compare and contrast the qualities of two people in by using a t-chart (Opener) Students will then apply these skills and summarize the key points of characterization of characters in “Thank you, Ma’am” using another chart
- Day 3: Students will zero in and compare/contrast the 2 characters of “Thank you, Ma’am” by identifying their role in the plot using a “Somebody wanted, but so” chart and characterization sheet from yesterday.
- Day 4: Students will identify who they think to be the protagonist of “Thank you, Ma’am” by citing evidence from the text to develop an argument. Students will use a claim and evidence organizer to help organize their main argument for their videos.
- Day 5: We will explain the type of audience students are speaking for, the elements, and show an example video on the board. After, students will use their characterization, and claim/evidence sheet to finally begin fluffing/scripting out their final arguments for their short videos.
- Finally, Students on their own will record and turn in a ‘Book Tok’ by arguing their case from “Thank you, Ma’am” using their rough draft scripts, characterization, plot, and claim/evidence/reasoning worksheets previously completed.
